Chinese Diaspora Music Video

With the rise of unjustified Sinophobia and the increased prejudice against Chinese diaspora, many of us feel unheard and isolated in a country that is supposed to welcome all. Western media leans into the yellow peril and portrays Chinese culture as something inherently predatory and political, but we are just people at the end of the day with dreams and hopes and fears. We created this music video to encourage lonely Chinese diaspora to reach out to their community and form connections during this divided time. We also created this music video to showcase the beauty of our heritage and the humanity of our people.
